Welcome to the North East Sling Library.

This guide hopes to provide you with details of what we stock and the costs to hire.

We currently have over 220 different slings and carriers for you to try, with more arriving every month. There are several sessions per month. Some of these are based at my home, while others are at various locations throughout the North East. All sessions are listed on our website homepage and we update Facebook and Twitter with details of each session. For the travelling sessions, if you wish for us to bring a specific sling then please message our Facebook page and if it is in stock we will bring it with us. The slings we have available at each session will vary based on those due back, out on hire and overdue.

We try to keep our sling hire rates as low as possible. It is £5 for 2 weeks and £8 for 4 weeks. Stretchy wraps (and stretchy hybrids) can be hired for 3 months for £20. Please be aware that we do charge late fees. We send a reminder to you a couple of days before sling is due back. Please let us know if you cannot bring it back to this session as we can extend your hire at normal hire fees. Our late fees are charged at £1 per day (£5 per week).

What types of slings are available?

The sling library has a range of over 220 different slings. Each is suitable for different occasions and not all will suit each wearer or baby. Some will require additional inserts or adaptations to make them suitable for small babies. Please speak to our team if you are unsure which one is best for you. They will use their knowledge to select the one which is most suitable based on the information you provide. It will not be possible during a sling library session to try several slings due to the nature of the sessions. I do not teach back carrying during a sling library session as they are simply too busy to be able to do it safely. If you want to try several and receive dedicated 1:1 support a sling consultation should be booked with our consultant, Rachel. There are a variety of 1:1 appointments available to suit your individual needs. To book an appointment please visit our booking site to select the date and time of your choice.

Wraps

Wraparound slings (wraps for short) are a long piece of fabric that is wrapped around the wearer and baby. They are generally classified in two categories: woven and stretchy wraps.

Stretchy wraps

Stretchy wraps and stretchy hybrid carriers such as the Close Caboo are often a parent's first experience of using a sling. They are suitable to use from birth. Most parents look to move on from using a stretchy wrap from around 4 to 6 months (typically 15-20lb). Many parents choose a stretchy wrap because of the ability to easily pre-tie the wrap in a Pocket Wrap Cross Carry, allowing them to prepare the wrap before putting their baby inside. Stretchy wraps have either one or two way stretch. One way stretch wraps stretch along the width of fabric only, whereas two way stretch wraps have both horizontal and vertical stretch (length and width).

Woven wraps

These are the most versatile of all carriers available on the market and can be used from birth until you want to stop carrying. Some hospitals even use them as labour aids, so they are incredibly strong. Woven wraps can be made from a variety of threads. Gauze wraps are generally much thinner and often cheaper. Simple piece of cloth carriers (SPOC) are made from fabric which did not have the original purpose of being used to make a baby sling.

There is a plethora of tying methods with a woven wrap and each size requires a different amount of fabric. The new or novice wrappers often need more fabric while they practise and master their technique and tightening methods.

Asian Based Carriers

Asian Based Carriers are based on the traditional carriers of East Asia. Traditional style carriers have formed the basis of the variety of soft structured carriers that are now available.

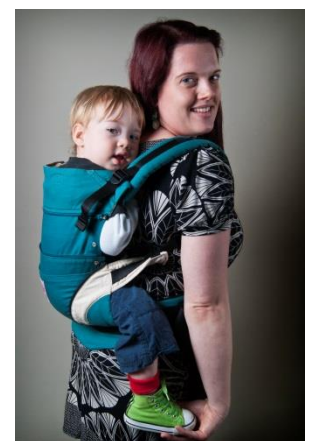

Mei Tai are extremely popular and are some of the simplest to use. These traditionally have a square body with waist straps and longer shoulder straps. They are tied around the wearers' waist and baby is placed on the waist band, the body panel is brought up over baby and sling is secured by crossing the shoulder straps over the wearer and tying. Some Mei Tai's are adjustable allowing them to be sized to fit even the smallest of babies.

Podeagi (Pods) are a traditional Korean carrier. They are made up of a blanket (wide or narrow styles exist) and long shoulder straps. Can be used across age ranges but requires skills to perfect when used from birth.

Onbuhimo (Onbu) originate from Japan. They have a square or rectangular body panel similar to a mei tai but have rings or loops at the waist through which the long shoulder straps are threaded.

Soft Structured Carriers are based on traditional Asian slings but have been developed to include padded shoulder straps, buckle closing and structured waist. Most can be used from birth (7.5lb) but may require an additional newborn insert to help boost baby in the sling.

One shoulder slings

Ring Slings are made up of a long (around 2m) piece of fabric that is stitched around two rings and secured by passing the free tail through the rings, thus creating an adjustable pouch for baby. As they are secured by passing the tail through the rings they can be sized to fit different adults and different size children. They can be used from birth.

Pouches are also a one shoulder sling but these are sized to the wearer and baby making them difficult to swap between different adults. They are fundamentally however the simplest carrier there is, as they are made from a single loop of fabric that is worn like a sash across the body.

Scootababy™ is a one shoulder buckle carrier. It has a buckle waist and can be used from approximately 4 months upwards. The shoulder is made from polar fleece for comfort of the wearer.

Please Note:

Remember if you have any questions ask our team. They are experienced sling users, many are trained peer supporters with Born to Carry and Rachel is a trained and qualified babywearing consultant.

Measurements of slings have been included where possible. East Sussex Slings have an extremely useful, carrier conversion chart on their website
